Questions Difficult to Answer, "These are difficult elections unswer. It be of course but size integer It is, of course that six-spende of doubt that a momerchy is better swited than a republic to thins. China's history and traditions, her social and scomming conditions, her relations with foreign powers all make his probable that the country would develop that conditioning foreign by the preserve its independence as a state, more easily as a monarchy than as a reeasily as a unmarchy than as a republic.

"But it is to be renembered that the change from a republic to a most architecture to the service and the service of the service made only on the following conditions."

Test. That the change does not meet with such apposition either on the part of the Chinese people or of foreign powers as will had to the recurrence of the disorders which the arcsent republicant government has present republican government has successfully put down. The present percental conditions of the country should of no account be imperied.

Second. The change from republic should off he account be introfiled. Second. The change from republic to monatchy would to of little actal if the law of succession is not so fixed that there will be no doubt as to the successor. The succession should not be left to the crown to determine for the reasons which have already been self-corne, true that the authority of an emperer would be more respected than the authority of a president. The people have been as incomed to an emperor. They hardly know when a president is. At the same time it would never doubtful if the increase of authority resulting from the change from prosident to emperor would be sufferent to justify the change if the question of the side vision were only a security fixed as to permit of no doubt. For this is the one greatest advantage of the monatchy over the advantage of the monarchy over the Change of Doubtful Benefit.

Third. It is very doubtful whether the change from republic to numbered tem must be developed among to precide and the government man be crossed. Mrs. Baker So Weak-Could Not Do Her Work-Found Relief In Novel Way, Adrian, Mich. - "I suffered terrible with female weakness and backache and could hardly do my work. When washed my dishes had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day 1 found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my busband and he said, "Why don't you try it?" So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, I don't need any more, and he said 'You had better take it s little longer anyway. So I took it for three months and got well and strong." - Mrs. Agonzo E. Baker, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work. In these words is bidden the tragely of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports berself and is often beloing to support a family, on meagrewages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one the and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lyda E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.
